LabLaw Firm & Company – the new model of excellence and innovation in labour and tax law consulting, a key reference for legal advisory and litigation in employment law, as well as an expert guide in organisational, IT, and administrative human resources management – has been awarded the "Law Firm of the Year 2025" prize at the TOP RANKING event, promoted by Ranking Professioni and Corriere della Sera.

Massimiliano Arlati and Francesco Rotondi – two of the four Founding Partners of LabLaw Firm & Company – received the award at the event organized by Corriere della Sera, a contest dedicated to the best law firms in Italy in 2025.

LabLaw Firm & Company has been recognised as one of the leading firms in the Italian legal landscape. It was selected by the contest's scientific committee, chaired by Professor Umberto Frigelli of the Università Cattolica of Milan, for representing an innovative professional entity, offering a broad and diversified range of services capable of guiding companies with solid expertise, high-quality standards, and specialisation in labour law, tax law, HR & industrial relations management.

This achievement marks another milestone in the firm's successful journey, fueled by a forward-looking vision, a commitment to growth, and the outstanding professionalism of its teams within an extensive international network. It reflects an ongoing process of transformation and innovation, keeping pace with the ever-evolving labour market.

"The story of our new firm is the result of a long journey that has made us key players in labour law over the past 25 years.

We have grown steadily with dedication and passion, always striving to enhance our expertise and respond to the needs of our clients in an increasingly competitive and international market.

This award is an honour for us because it rewards our professionals' hard work and motivates them to maintain excellence", said Francesco Rotondi.

"It is only right to think of a law firm as an evolved business, with an unwavering focus on human resources and teamwork, where technology serves as the connective tissue for relationships with professionals and clients. I believe this recognition acknowledges our efforts in this direction", added Massimiliano Arlati.
